LONDON, April 7.

THE Miniſters have had great ſucceſs in the management of the preſent General Election; there was a tide in their popularity, which, taken at the flood, led on to fortune. Their triumph at Cambridge, has been complete; for it muſt be ſuppoſed that the votes of the learned conſtituents were utterly unbiaſſed; the ſeat of religion and liberal ſcience, muſt be the reſidence of good faith and independent ſpirit; earthly intereſt and ſelfiſh deſires never creep into colleges, thoſe manſions of preachers and philoſophers. In the city of London, the old members have indeed been returned in deſpite of great exertions uſed by all the monied connexions of Lord North's old government; in defiance too of courtly interference, which happens to be not unfaſhionable; and in contradiction to the ſentiments expreſſed in the city addreſs, which gave birth to all the other addreſſes. But the city of Weſtminſter makes ample amends for this ſmall check to the career of the court exertions. In Weſtminſter the Man of the People is cruſhed by the people whom he loved and ſerved: Democracy and Prerogative have kiſſed each other, and go hand in hand to his deſtruction; houſe-keepers and lodgers, ſoldiers and quakers, Wilkites and High Churchmen, Dukes and common ſailors, royal adviſers and preſbyterians, have all united againſt him.—And though he makes a ſtout ſtand, and has ſhewn that he ſtill poſſeſſes the affections of the multitude, it is not likely that he will be returned to repreſent them. It is an additional triumph, that the inſtrument of his defeat is the very ſame Gentleman whom he himſelf firſt recommended to the notice of the electors of Weſtminſter, in preference to the worthy Admiral with whom that Gentleman is now joined. A ſignal victory has alſo been gained by Mr. Robinſon over Lord North and Mr. Rigby, at Harwich; and Mr. Ord, the late confidential Secretary of Lord Shelburne, has ſuperſeded Col. North at that place. At York too, the electors placed Lord J. Cavendiſh in one ſcale and Lord Galway in the other, and the weight of the latter predominated. At Worceſter, Yarmouth, Northampton, Southwark, Hull, Maidſtone, Hertford, Lancaſter, Dover, and in Berkſhire, Surry, Suffolk, Yorkſhire, &c. the electors have been loyal enough, (if we may borrow a phraſe from ſome of the moſt popular advertiſements) "to chooſe no perſon obnoxious to his Majeſty." The friends of the preſent government may alſo without a ſecond ſight anticipate the credit of great ſucceſſes in Scotland; and though it may ſound incredible to an Engliſh ear and feel grating to an Engliſh heart, it is even poſſible that the late member for Lanerkſhire will no longer have the ſupport of the family which predominates in that country. At Briſtol, Lancaſter, Liverpool, Coventry and in Lancaſhire, Norfolk, Northamptonſhire, Hertfordſhire, &c. ad huc ſub judice lis eſt. But though the reſult of theſe various conteſts may be chequered and uncertain, ſufficient is already known to aſcertain beyond diſpute, that the miniſterial troops will take the field on the 18th of May with a decided ſuperiority of numbers; and many of the principle ſpeakers will be no longer in parliament. Upon the whole, it ſeems not improbable that ſuch members or adherents of the late government as happen to be returned, will ſtoop to the ſtorm. If this ſhould be the caſe, the people of this country, to whoſe wiſdom the appeal was made, will have the ſatisfaction of ſeeing their young and favourite miniſter in full poſſeſſion of an attached parliament, and left without control to the undiſturbed direction of all the intereſts of the kingdom, conſtitutional, financial, domeſtic and foreign. How far the want of oppoſition may ſupply the place of that efficiency, union, and extention, which a few weeks ago were the univerſal wiſh of all parties and deſcripitions of men, is a ſpeculation which time only can determine.

April 23. Letters from Dublin, ſtate that the inhabitants of that city are in the utmoſt confuſion. Two men have been apprehended for conſpiring to aſſaſſinate ſeven members of the Houſe of Commons, among whom were the Attorney-General and Mr. Forſter, Secretary of State. The buſineſs has been mentioned in the houſe, as appears by the public prints, and orders are iſſued to march up ſeveral regiments from the country.

It is calculated, that the expence of cockades alone, during the election, throughout the country, muſt amount to at leaſt 50,000l.

How can this country do otherwiſe than flouriſh? Do we not ſend members daily to parliament, that they may defraud their creditors, and ſet the laws at defiance? Are not all our ſenators independent men? In principle and fortune independent? Free to vote as their neceſſities may lead them—free to perjure themſelves if they want qualifications—and free to enſlave us if they have them? This country muſt therefore flouriſh.

The true reaſon of Reynard's being ſuch a favourite at Carleton-houſe is, that he is the prime miniſter of a certain gentleman's intrigues, Charles is in the ſame honorable office as Gill Blaſs was formerly to the Prince of Spain. What a pity that he is not rewarded with a dark apartment for life, in the Britiſh tower of Segovia.

A letter from Amſterdam ſays, that they have received an account from the Cape of Good Hope, that they have had a violent hurricane there, which has blown down many buildings, and ſome people buried in the ruins. Three ſhips were drove from their anchors and forced out to ſea, and it is feared they will be loſt. Some other veſſels received conſiderable damage in the harbour.

Extract of a letter from Milan, March 23, 1784.

"An æroſtatic balloon has been launched in this city, 66 feet broad, and 72 feet high, prepared by M. Paul Andreani, a young gentleman of 20 years of age, who, with two of his friends was elevated in this globe. It is computed that they mounted to the height of 4000 feet. Having traverſed the air for half an hour, they deſcended on the ſame ſpot from whence they ſtarted. This is the firſt experiment of the kind made in Italy."

We hear from Dijon, that M. Morveau, chymiſt and ſecretary to the academy of that city, in filling the air balloon, makes uſe, with ſucceſs, of the gas of potatoes, which he has found by repeated experiment, is, to the inflammable air from metals, as ſix to ſeven.

Extract of a letter from the Hague, April 14, 1784.

"The affairs of the Stadtholder engages the attention of people of all ranks, as it is likely to lay a baſis of troubles not eaſily removed. There has long been a deſign among the French faction, to ſhake the power of the Houſe of Orange, but hitherto without effect. The Baron Drugire, envoy from Denmark, has delivered a manifeſt to the States General, who are now ſitting, ſimilar to that from the court of Berlin, to which the Baron de Thuylemeyer is labouring daily to obtain an anſwer."

The French keep all their ſeamen in their own ſervice, while thoſe of England and Ireland are ſcattered among the navigators of all nations.

May 3. The laſt foreign mail brought the important news of a revolution in one of the northern kingdoms, which, when confirmed, will be very advantageous to this realm. Too untimely injured innocence will then ſhine—O fair Matilda yet much lamented!

It is notorious that the Duke of Rutland accepted his preſent high ſtation, upon the moſt open and generous principles—determined upon the eſteem and applauſe of the people of Ireland, his Grace would not be preſcribed to narrow ſyſtems,

His good intentions, however, are at the preſent moment in great danger of being ſubverted; the odious bill for reſtricting the liberty of the preſs being alone ſufficient to ſhadow all his virtues.

Mr. Ord finds the people of Ireland by no means ſo tractable and credulous as he was inſtructed. He has received ſeveral hard knocks in the Houſe of Commons, and dreads nothing ſo much as the return of that old parliamentary bruiſer, Mr. Flood, who is hourly expected in Dublin.

We are informed from undoubted authority that the noblemen, gentlemen, and ladies, in the intereſt of Mr. Fox, have appointed a committee to inquire into the caſes of ſuch tradeſmen as have ſuffered from the oppreſſion of the court party, many of whom have been formerly acquainted, that in conſequence of their having voted in the preſent election contrary to the wiſhes of their employers, they are in future to be deprived of their cuſtom. This committee is to prepare a liſt of ſuch perſons for the noblemen, gentlemen, and ladies abovementioned, who have entered into a moſt laudable aſſociation to employ thoſe only, in their ſeveral trades, in lieu of ſuch as have baſely betrayed their country, by ſacrificing their franchiſes to the undue influence of the court, or of thoſe who have not dared manfully to ſtand forth at the riſque of their intereſt, and have endeavoured to ſcreen themſelves from all danger by a pitiful neutrality.

BELFAST, April 2.

Laſt Monday Captain Abraham Rabaſh, and his ſon Ali Rabaſh, two Turks, taken priſoners by the Spaniards in attempting to bring relief to the garriſon of Gibraltar, who had afterwards eſcaped and got to Leith, from whence they came to this town, well recommended by the grand lodge of Scotland —viſited the Orange lodge, No. 257, where they were treated with every reſpect, civility and love, by the brethren of that numerous and reſpectable body; who gave them a recommendation to other lodges, and a ſum of money to enable them to return to Conſtantinople, the place of their nativity. How grateful to the liberal mind, to perceive the diſtinction of Turk and Chriſtian,—in ſhort, all local and religious prejudices, ſunk in the more ſublime affection, which, as the offſpring of one common parent, we all owe to one another; and which every ſound principle of religion and virtue never fails to heighten into pure philanthropy, when not obſcured by the rankeſt bigotry and ignorance.

PROVIDENCE, June 19.

Wedneſday laſt the Hon. Thomas Jefferſon, Eſq; late Governor of Virginia, arrived here by land from that ſtate, on his way to Boſton. He is ſhortly to embark for Europe, as a miniſter plenipotentiary from the United States, in the room of the Hon. John Jay, Eſq; who is about to return to America. Governor Jefferſon, who has ſo eminently diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the late glorious revolution, is a gentleman of a very amiable character, to which he has joined the moſt extenſive knowledge. He is a mathematician and philoſopher, as well as a civilian and politician, and the memorable declaration of American independence is ſaid to have been penned by him. On Thurſday he ſat out for Boſton, and was attended a few miles from town by a number of the principal inhabitants.

NEW-YORK, July 1.

Yeſterday arrived in this harbour, the ſloop Hariot Capt. Munro, from the Cape of Good Hope, in 65 days; owner, Iſaac Sears, Eſq; merchant in this city: as yet we have not been able to learn any news by this veſſel, nor any ſpecial occurrences in this remarkable ſhort voyage.

The Governor Harriſon, Williamſon, from London, for Virginia, is put into Madeira.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Canada, to his friend in this city, dated June 14, 1784.

"Our General Haldimand, one of the moſt curious old women you ever heard of, in conſequence of a tale told him by a Captain Mure, who was inſulted in New-York laſt fall, has refuſed to deliver up Michilemakinac, has ſent Governor Hayes to re-command Detroit, and refuſes paſſes to all who apply for them, to come over the lakes to Albany or York: he certainly is doing wrong when every animoſity ſhould be buried in oblivion, to rake up the aſhes of diſſenſion does not become a General. Every Canadian languiſhes to be out of the Engliſh government; but their puſillanimity makes them, Spanial like, kiſs the rod that ſcourges them.

"Every Iriſhman in Canada wiſhes to have a hand in the preſent tranſactions at home, moſt of the Scotchmen here have long been diſaffected. Buſineſs is dead. Bankrupts daily croud the gazette, and what will become of us here, we know not. The General ſays, as "he hopes to be d—n'd (a common phraſe with him) he will make all Canada tremble at him: our loyaliſts are all departing for Cataraqua, &c. I a little time I ſhall be able to give you a particular account of every occurrence here; till when, I am your's ſincerely."

The ſhip Lady Cathcart, Captain Stupart, is arrived at Jamaica in 53 days from London and Madeira; while the Lady Cathcart was at Madeira, the ſhip United State, Captain Bell, from Philadelphia for Canton, in China, touched there.

From Worceſter, in Maſſachuſetts, we are informed, that a man belonging to Hopkinton, by the name of David Cutler, who had been to Cambridge to tranſact ſome buſineſs, ſtopped at the houſe of Mr. Richardſon, inn-keeper, about three miles from the college; and having previouſly, by his own confeſſion, taken the reſolution to put an end to his life, went into a paſture near the houſe for that purpoſe; he there pulled off his coat, and then with a penknife cut his own throat in a moſt ſhocking manner. It was in the evening, and he was obſerved going into the paſture; his behavior occaſioned ſome ſuſpicion, and induced Mr. Richardſon to go after him. On his ſeeing Mr. Richardſon, he drew the knife from his throat, and ſtabbed himſelf in the ſide, and alſo cut his arm; he then deſiſted and was carried into the houſe. He is yet alive, but lies dangerouſly ill.

If people can commit the moſt horrid and deteſtible crime of ſuicide, in the full exerciſe of their reaſon, the community had better be without ſuch wretches, ſuch blots in nature; and we recommend to theſe cowards, who ſhrink at real or imaginary misfortunes, that when they are determined on committing violence on themſelves, they would tie a ſtone to a rope about their neck, and caſt themſelves into the ſea; in order to prevent the operation of the law upon their pitiable carcaſes after their deceaſe, and thoſe horrible diſguſting ideas which naturally ariſe in the rational mind, on ſeeing any thing in the ſhape of a human being, with his throat cut, and bleeding like a butchered hog, or hanging by the neck like a fooliſh dog. But we conclude that no man who is not inſane can commit ſuch an outrage on himſelf—violate the laws of nature, and thereby offend the Deity, and riſk the torments of the apoſtate damned.—At leaſt he muſt be a perſon of no fortitude, no philoſophy, nd no philanthropy.

From a BRITISH NEWSPAPER.

BEING an old bachelor I dine more frequently with my friends than at home; I think it my duty to divert them with ſomething entertaining; for this end I have got together, by frequent reading and converſation, a large collection of jeſts, conundrums, &c. &c. But, as my ſtock, you know, can not laſt for ever, I am obliged to recruit with ſome bagatelle of my own invention. Dining the other day at a friends houſe, where I uſually make my appearance in the holidays, a young lady, whether from want of appetite, or out of obſtinacy, I cannot determine, refuſed her dinner: after many uſeleſs ſolicitations on all ſides, I addreſſed her thus

Eat it if you can
Eat it if you can't
Eat it
Don't eat it.

The whole company immediately teſtified marks of ſurpriſe; the lady, who was rather offended, deſired, if I ſpoke no more to the purpoſe, to ſay nothing. I inſiſted it was to the purpoſe. How can that be? ſays my friend; you deſire my daughter to eat her dinner if ſhe can; then to eat it if ſhe cannot; and then, after deſiring her to eat it, you tell her ſhe muſt not eat it: Can you call this unintelligible jargon of contradiction to the purpoſe? Surely no. I ſtill aſſerted that what I had ſaid was ſtrictly true, and to convince the company of the juſtneſs of my aſſertion, told them, that the whole conſiſted in a ſmall change of the ſtops, which without altering a ſingle letter, would convert it into

Eat it if you can eat it
If you can't eat it don't eat it.

The whole company were ſatisfied with the explanation, and Miſs, pleaſed with the oddity of the invitation, eat her dinner with great chearfulneſs. All I have to urge in favour of this trifle is, that it is entirely new; all that I have to requeſt is, that you'll

Print it if you will
Print it if you won't
Print it
Don't print it.

By complying with the prior part of the requeſt you will oblige,

ABRAHAM FUSTY.

JEREMY FIZZ-GIGG begs leave to inform the public (more eſpecially the younger part of both ſexes) who are pining under the controul of maiden aunts, rigid guardians, or fond parents, that he has juſt completed a large aſſortment of air-balloons, properly conſtructed on the beſt principles of atmoſpherical navigation, and that he undertakes to convey any perſon or perſons that may have occaſion, from hence to any part of his Majeſty's dominions. His balloons will be moſtly ſuited to the accommodation of two perſons; but if any delicacy ſhould ariſe, he has little ones to hood on, for the conveyance of chaperons, bridmaids, bridemen, or what not.

To prevent purſuit Mr. Fizz-gigg or ſome of his men will conſtantly attend in other machines, well ſtored with ſquirts, fountains, watering pots, &c. to envelope the happy couple in artificial miſts and clouds; and ſhould even the ſame mode of travelling be adopted by their friends and relations, he has ſtill a means in his power of totally deſtroying both them and their balloons, by portable bombs calculated to diſcharge the inflammable air; to the entire ſatisfaction (he doubts not) of all engaged in the enterprize, he will daſh the whole family againſt a rock, plunge them into the ocean, or involve them in any other calamity, that may be moſt agreeable to the parties concerned.

That the public may be convinced of the real advantage of his plan, Mr. Fizz-gigg, humbly propoſes to elope with his chamber maid undiſcovered, ſome time next week, in defiance of his own or his maid's friends.

Pigeons taught to carry letters with the greateſt care and ſecrecy.

POETRY.

A SIMILE.

"DEAR Thomas, didſt thou never pop
Thy head into a tin-man's ſhop?
There Thomas, didſt thou never ſee,
('Tis but by way of ſimile)
A Squirrel ſpend his little rage,
In jumping round a rolling cage?
The cage on either ſide turn'd up,
Striking a ring of bells a-top—?
Mov'd in the orb; pleas'd with the chimes;
The fooliſh creature thinks he climbs:
But here or there, turn wood or wire,
He never gets two inches higher.
So fares it with thoſe merry blades
That friſk it under Pindus' ſhades,
In noble ſongs and lofty odes,
They tread on ſtars and talk with Gods.
Still dancing in an airy round:
Still pleas'd with their own verſes ſound.
Brought back, how faſt ſoe'er they go:
Always aſpiring; always low."

As no pains have been ſpared to obtain the ſeveral articles of the beſt quality and at the loweſt market-prices, and, as they will be ſold at a moderate advance on the European coſt, the ſubſcriber doubts not, that ſuch gentlemen as want ſupplies of medicines for private practice only, will find it in the end more advantageous to purchaſe their ſupplies here, freſh and warranted, and as the demands of their practice call for them, than to depend on ſmall importations made by themſelves from abroad, the terms of theſe being always higher, beſides their being liable to delays and many caſualities known to thoſe who have tried this mode of obtaining their ſupplies.
